

Training Excellence

The people who work at Pendine Park are our best asset and we are passionate about training which is why we introduced our own award-winning Pendine Park Teaching Care Centre.

Our managers, nurses, care practitioners and support teams are chosen for their caring nature and dedication. They receive excellent 'on the job' training from friendly trainers as well as training at our Teaching Care Centre, which helps everyone deliver the highest possible standard of care.

As well as mandatory training, we focus on innovative care training to ensure person-centred care and quality of life. We also support staff with personal development training including NVQs and Diplomas.

We have Pendine Partners across the business who are highly trained experts in various areas such as staff development, social responsibility, clinical care, quality environment and processes. These roles help us maintain your high standards in everything we do and offer personal development for the Pendine Partners.

The Teaching Care Centre has been nationally recognised with commendations at the Social Care Accolades and National Training Awards. And we were delighted when an NVQ level 4 Management trainee received a City & Guilds Medal of Excellence Award, presented by the Duke of Edinburgh at St. James Palace.

We are passionate about the benefits of intergenerational work and older people mixing with younger people, which is why we work to support Health and Social Care GCSE students locally.

With innovative courses in personal development, care and health and safety we also train staff from other organisations both within and outside the care sector, as well as offering free training to family carers.
